

Red-Necked Nightjar

Caprimulgus ruficollis

SEASONAL BEHAVIOUR

Most stay with us from April to September.

DISTRIBUTION

Absent or scarce in most of Huelva and Seville. More numerous in Córdoba and Jaén.

COMMENTS

Its percussive song has won it onomatopoeic local nicknames like capacho, gapacho and especially zumaya, zamaya or azamaya. Sometimes enters towns to hunt moths round streetlights.
